In Romans 9:1-5, Paul passionately expresses his love for unbelievers. This passage serves as a reminder that we must not become so consumed with our own struggles and spiritual growth that we forget about those who need to know Christ. Paul's statement in Romans 9 is a powerful reminder of the importance of sharing the gospel with others. He says, "If it were possible, I would give up my hope of eternal life so that others who do not know could come to faith."

As believers, we don't just follow God; we have a personal relationship with Him. This relationship comes with the critical responsibility to share the love of God with those who are not part of the church or faith. If God's love is genuinely working in our lives, it should inspire us and compel us to take bold actions. Do you feel a deep burden for those who don't know Jesus Christ? If not, I urge you to pray that God give you this burden. You will be amazed at how quickly He answers your prayer. Remember, as believers, we have a personal duty to share the good news of the gospel with those who have not heard it yet. Let's not falter in our mission to bring others to Christ.
